From Eagle Creek Mines.

LA GRANDE, May 8, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Knowing that you take a deep interest in every thing pertaining to this upper country, and that the OREGONIAN affords the best means of communicating any information to the masses of the people, I take this opportunity of furnishing you a few items regarding the Eagle Creek mines. There are about 700 men employed, all of whom are well pleased with their prospects. Mr. Seely, who has just arrived from there, has brought down palpable evidence of the richness of these mines. He brought down about 20 ounces of the dust. It is very coarse and resembles Cariboo gold. Chase & [illegible] have a small quartz mill there which will be [illegible] operation.

Our rivers are very high at present. I understand that several bridges have been washed away on the Umatilla river, rendering the mail route from Walla Walla impassable. By the way, we might as well have no mail at all as to be dependent on the service which is performed at present. The stage which left Walla Walla some time ago, is blockaded in the mountains. Passengers are led to believe that there is no difficulty in getting through, and when they arrive at the first station are agreeably surprised to learn that they have the privilege of footing the remainder of the distance. The mail matter is also deposited there, and there is quite an accumulation of it for this place which would be very acceptable at present, as the only news we receive is obtained through Ish & Haley's line, which has made regular trips all through the winter. Our postmaster has been obliged to make arrangements with those gentlemen for carrying the mail, as there is no chance of getting it by the other line.

J. B.

MONAHAN THE TRAITOR.—Our officers who were imprisoned in Charleston are familiar with the character of J. J. Monahan. He was employed as a spy and policeman by the rebel authorities, and had the opportunity, by the position he held, to aid our prisoners in escaping. He was paid by the Union people to do this work, pocketed their bribes, and then betrayed our officers in order to secure the reward offered for their arrest. He was sent for the other day by Colonel Woodford. When his time came for an audience, he was received with "the most distinguished regard," and the following conversation took place:

Colonel Woodford—"Your name, sir?"

"Monahan."

Colonel W.—"Ah! I am glad to see you, Monahan. I have often heard of you from our officers who were imprisoned here."—

Monahan looked aghast, and stammered out:

"Yes, sir—yes, sir—what did they say about me?"

"Why," said the Colonel, "they told us that you aided them to escape."

Monahan's face brightened instantly.

"Yes, sir," he rejoined, "I often helped them to get off."

"Yes, sir," said the Colonel, "and they say you are very shrewd."

"Yes, yes," grinned Monahan, "I'm pretty smart."

"Yes, sir," said the Colonel, "and they tell me that when you got our prisoners out, you sold them to the rebel authorities."

Monahan turned pale and looked as if he would sink through the floor. He did not utter a word.

"Now, sir," added the Colonel, "I have a little hotel where men of your stamp are boarded. Orderly!"

The Orderly came into the room.

"Orderly, take my friend Monahan to Castle Pinckney under guard."

NOVEL COMBAT.—An elephant and bull fight took place lately at Saragossa, Spain. The elephant was walking quietly about the arena when the first bull was released and rushed at it with all his might. The elephant received his antagonist with great coolness, and threw him down with the utmost ease. The bull rose again and made two more attacks, which the elephant resented by killing him with a thrust of his tusks. The conqueror did not seem in the least excited, but quietly drank some water offered by his keeper, and ate several ears of Indian corn. A second bull was then released, and in a few minutes suffered the same as the first.

A SAFE RULE.—A minister, preaching on the subject of misrepresentations and slander, said: When professors of religion so far degrade themselves and their profession as to attempt to injure others by lying and misrepresentations, they should remember that when the devil was disputing with the archangel about the body of Moses, the Lord would not permit the archangel to bring a railing accusation against the devil; and until they can prove that the individual they wish to injure is worse than the devil, and they themselves are better than the archangel, the bible requires them to hold their tongue and mind their business.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY [illegible]

The Northern Pacific Railroad Route

[illegible] the vast region lying between [illegible] has been [illegible] with the geography of [illegible] the country [illegible] known. The topography [illegible] of late been [illegible] with a view [illegible] the route on which it is proposed to build the Northern Pacific Railroad, [illegible] for the purpose of ascertaining from the emigration of the country where deposits of the precious metals are most likely to be found. Almost every part of the Territories of Idaho and Montana has been [illegible] by enterprising gold hunters. The [illegible] and diverse incidents of these explorations have spread the knowledge [illegible] and what was formerly a terra incognita [illegible] no longer.

The Northern railroad route has been fully shown to be an entirely practicable one. The unbounded mineral wealth of Idaho and Montana seems to render it altogether probable that this route may be the first chosen for a railroad across the continent. The natural barriers that exist further southward are not found here, and there is abundant proof that snow does not fall to such a depth on a line from Fort Benton to Walla Walla, as on other routes that have been proposed. A low pass has been traced along Clarke's river through to its head waters and thence to the feeders of the Missouri. That a railroad can easily be constructed along this route, and that it will suffer no more from obstruction by snow than do the lines of Canada and Northern New York, are matters no longer of conjecture, but facts absolutely known. Captain Mullan has traveled the whole route with much particularity. The entire distance from Fort Benton to Walla Walla he computes at six hundred and twenty four miles. At intervals along the route there is considerable timber, and in nearly all the streams are tracts more or less extensive of good agricultural land. That whole country is by no means an arid unfruitful waste, as many represent it. Farmers are already to be found in almost every valley. The permanent settlement of the country has fairly begun.

For steamers of light draught the Missouri is easily navigable to Fort Benton. If a railroad should be built from that point through Montana and Idaho it would furnish to the mining districts the readiest means of communication with the East that could be obtained. It would also unite by river and rail the Atlantic and Pacific slopes and open an advantageous way for intercourse and trade between the west and east—a way that could continue until the necessity of using the Missouri river was superseded by the more expeditious and commodious means of travel and transportation which an entire line of railroad from one ocean to the other would afford.

During the present spring several steamers have left Pittsburg, at short intervals, for Fort Benton. The majestic sweep of our mighty rivers renders navigation possible across much more than half the continent. The wants of the gold mines, with travel to and from them, will continually cause steamboats to ascend the Missouri to the nearest points from whence the mines can be reached. Regular packets will hereafter run to Fort Benton, at least during the spring and summer months and the great northern line of communication will be kept open. From Pittsburg to Fort Benton is probably the longest river voyage ever performed. Steamboats will however no doubt hereafter ascend from New Orleans to the furthest navigation of the Missouri, and every point on the Mississippi and its tributaries will be within reach of the golden sands of the Columbia. The most intimate intercommunication between all parts of our great country is a thing to be desired, and the more extensive the commerce between the East and the West, and the more thorough the intercourse among the people, the more readily will all be brought to consider themselves only as citizens of a common country and to banish those narrow local prejudices which tend to set discord among us.

PURITAN ON THE BRAIN.—The anti-Puritan Reporter has evidently again got [illegible] Malone at the helm, and he eclipses the poor [illegible] who has tried to kill off the "Puritans" by [illegible] measures during his absence. On the second page of the last number the changes are rung on the word "Puritan" sixteen times. That [illegible] is quite a curiosity. Such Irishmen as Archbishop Hughes, Brownson, Purcell, Meagher and Corcoran are [illegible] having [illegible] morning lately. Our wonder is excited the most, however, when we read the following.

The restoration of the Union by any means means the restoration of the Democratic party to the control of the National Government. The Union would have been the subjugation of the Democratic party. That party never had a majority in the free States. It always needed the assistance of the South to [illegible] Puritanism [illegible] nothing in the present aspect of public affairs to make Democrats despond, but much to cause them to rejoice, which is certainly manifest [illegible]

While the struggle of the South [illegible] to break up the Union, they [illegible] their sympathy nor material support from their friends in the adhering States. They [illegible] the arms and the [illegible] and the [illegible] of their friends in the North [illegible] strike home for their cause.

You could [illegible] and if they failed [illegible] not your fault.

The [illegible] our [illegible] again unite with the Democracy of the North. [illegible] Just at present they despise [illegible] hate Puritanism. They w[illegible] or more.

The Reporter [illegible] the daily [illegible] carried with regularity by [illegible] spring with great regularity. There [illegible] ing Malone say five years ago that he was a [illegible] publican at heart but [illegible] do with it [illegible] He would belong to no party [illegible] The present alliance [illegible] fact that Pushi[illegible] than Malone can.

THE LITERARY [illegible] In his message of December, 1860, old Buchanan [illegible] that the General Government [illegible] the seceded States [illegible] had no right [illegible] The Nation [illegible] blow for blow. [illegible]

[illegible] well that the Union was [illegible] right [illegible] the law [illegible] this great evil was [illegible] at the head of the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Sabbath [illegible] evening, he [illegible] may [illegible] Dalles on Saturday night and [illegible] Monday morning. [illegible] These persons will [illegible] order that will [illegible] [illegible] the "Blue Laws" of Con[necticut] [illegible] all the stores were opened [illegible] and things went [illegible] there was no such thing as a Sunday [illegible]

The object of the Oregon jurist appears to be to [illegible] the law [illegible] which [illegible] the nineteenth century [illegible] will expunge the whole code from [illegible] The code is [illegible] that it does not [illegible] all [illegible] it is harsh and oppressive. Referring to the paper before us and opening the book almost at random we find that a party charged with keeping a house of ill fame can be convicted on no better evidence than that of common reputation.

Contrast with the above the following just remarks from the [illegible] of Saturday:

But shall our Sabbath law be enforced and prove a source of good to our State? The response [illegible] with the people at large but especially [illegible] with the four classes of our citizens. First. Officers must do their duty [illegible] that all offenders shall be made to realize that the law is a reality. The press may do much to render it effective. The newspaper is a great power in moulding public sentiment. It gives [illegible] of right and wrong in the family. It is a teacher whose voice is constantly heard and whose power is silently felt in the community and the family. The newspaper brings weal or woe, moral life or death into the domestic circle. Every publisher and editor is responsible to the moral influence of the sheet with which he is identified. What will the Oregon editors say and do in relation to the Sunday law? [illegible] many of them, alas! are silent when they ought to speak out boldly and [illegible] Perhaps they regard the matter as settled and nothing further is required. But there is a moral force requisite to render operative the law which has been enacted. A few papers have spoken out favorably, reminding the people of duty, and commending the observance of the statute. A single shout has come to the [illegible] office which condemns the law, sneers at it, terms it puritanical and thinks we ought not copy New England. The [illegible] predicts its repeal and suggests public meetings to work for its abrogation. The same paper [illegible] the stringent provisions for breaking up houses of ill fame and gambling dens! Can a [illegible] that any family who have a care for decency and self respect can tolerate such a sheet? Can parents, who are desirous of inculcating principles of virtue and moral worth in their children permit a newspaper to enter their dwelling, that will denounce a Sunday law and in the same issue plead for the toleration of such foul dens as gambling hells and brothels? We trust there is but one such sheet in Oregon.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY POLITICS.—Last evening we had the pleasure of a call from the Union candidate for the delegateship of Washington Territory. He and Mr Garfielde, who accompanies him, are making a thorough canvass. Major Tilton, the opposing candidate, declines to appear with them before the people. Much interest is felt in the issue by the people of the Territory. There is a firm determination among the Union men to place the northwest like the northeast in a proper position before the country. From many sources we learn that the indications of the canvass are highly favorable to the Union cause. Mr. Garfielde is devoting his time and his splendid oratorical powers to the support of the party which has preserved the country through this terrible conflict which is now almost over. His unselfish devotion to the Union cause during the present contest in Washington Territory will be applauded by all who adhere to the party which sustains the Union.

The times and places of public speaking by Messrs. Denny and Garfielde (so far as now appointed) are as follows:

Lewis river, Monday 15th, 11 A. M.; Vancouver, Wednesday 17th, 7½ P. M.; Washougal, (Stile's School house) 18th, [illegible] P. M.; Cascades, Friday 19th, [illegible]

PRESIDENT JOHNSON ON LOYALTY.—The [illegible] reports the speech of Governor [illegible] to Washington. [illegible] He made the following [illegible]

The Northern Pacific Railroad Route

[illegible] the vast region lying between [illegible] [illegible] gave [illegible] [illegible] was previously known [illegible] of [illegible] route on which [illegible] Northern [illegible] Railroad [illegible] ascertaining [illegible] where deposits of the precious metals are most likely to be found. Almost every part of the [illegible] and Montana has been penetrated by enterprising gold hunters. The [illegible] and [illegible] spend [illegible] the knowledge [illegible] and what was [illegible] no longer.

The Northern railroad route has been fully shown to be an entirely practicable one. The unbounded mineral wealth of Idaho and Montana seems to render it [illegible] that the route may be the first [illegible] across the continent. The natural barriers that exist further southward are not found here, and there is abundant proof that snow [illegible] to such a depth on a line from Fort Benton to Walla Walla as on other routes that have been proposed. A low pass has been traced along Clarke's river through to its head waters, and thence to the [illegible] of the Missouri. That a railroad can easily be constructed along this route, and that it will suffer [illegible] by snow than do the lines of Canada and Northern New York are matters no longer of [illegible] but [illegible] absolutely known. Captain Mullan has [illegible] the whole route with much particularity. The entire distance from Fort Benton to Walla Walla he computes at six hundred and twenty-four miles. At intervals along the route there is considerable timber, and on nearly all the streams are tracts more or less extensive of good agricultural land. That whole country is by no means an arid unfruitful waste, as many represent it. Farmers are already to be found in almost every valley. The permanent settlement of the country has fairly begun.

For steamers of light draught the Missouri is easily navigable to Fort Benton. If a railroad should be built from that point through Montana and Idaho it would furnish to the mining districts the readiest means of communication with the east that could be obtained. It would also unite by river and rail the Atlantic and Pacific slopes and open an advantageous way for intercourse and trade between the west and east—a way that could continue until the necessity of using the Missouri river was superseded by the more expeditious and commodious means of travel and transportation which an entire line of railroad from one ocean to the other would afford.

During the present spring several steamers have left Pittsburg, at short intervals, for Fort Benton. The majestic sweep of our mighty rivers renders navigation possible across much more than half the continent. The wants of the gold mines, with travel to and from them, will continually cause steamboats to ascend the Missouri to the nearest points from whence the mines can be reached. Regular packets will hereafter run to Fort Benton at least during the spring and summer months, and the great northern line of communication will be kept open. From Pittsburg to Fort Benton is probably the longest river voyage ever performed. Steamboats will however no doubt hereafter ascend from New Orleans to the furthest navigation of the Missouri, and every point on the Mississippi and its tributaries will be within reach of the golden sands of the [illegible]. The most intimate intercommunication between all parts of our great country is a thing to be desired, and the more extensive the commerce between the East and the West, and the more thorough the intercourse among the people, the more readily will all be brought to [illegible] only as citizens of a common country and [illegible] those narrow local prejudices which tend to set discord among us.

PURITANS ON THE BRAIN.—The anti-Puritan Register has evidently again got [illegible] at the helm, and he eclipses the poor efforts of [illegible] who has tried to kill off the "Puritans" by mild measures during his absence. On the second page of the last number [illegible] the word "Puritan" sixteen times. [illegible] is quite a curiosity. Such Irishmen as Archbishop Hughes, Brownson, [illegible] Corcoran are [illegible] rather glories in not having [illegible] in mourning lately! [illegible] most, however, when [illegible]

The restoration of the Union by any means means the restoration of the Democratic party to the control of the National Government. [illegible] union would have been the subjugation [illegible] Democratic party. [illegible] majority in the free States. [illegible] the assistance of the South to keep down [illegible] nothing in the present aspect [illegible] make Democrats desp[illegible] to rejoice, which [illegible]

While the struggle of the Southern people was to break up the Union, they [illegible] their sympathy and practical support from [illegible] friends in the adhering States. They [illegible] the arms and the [illegible] friends in the North [illegible] strike [illegible] for their cause.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY POLITICS.—Last evening we had the pleasure of a call from the Union candidate for the delegateship of Washington Territory. He and Mr Garfielde, who accompany him, are making a thorough canvass. Major Tilton, the opposing candidate, declines to appear with them before the people. Much interest is felt in the issue by the people of the Territory. There is a firm determination among the Union men to [illegible] the northeast in a [illegible] before the country. [illegible] that the [illegible] of the Union candidate are highly favorable. [illegible] Mr Garfielde [illegible] his fine and his splendid oratorical powers [illegible] the support of the party which has preserved the country through the terrible conflict which is now almost over. His unselfish devotion to the Union cause during the present contest in Washington Territory will be applauded by all who adhere to the party which sustains the Union.

The times and places of public speaking by Messrs Denny and Garfielde, so far as now appointed, are as follows:

And it will Cure You!

"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences,

as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption." — [Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.

STOP THAN COUGHING!

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure, but

Pulmonary Syrup!

Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.

WHAT KILLED HIM?

Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds, "He might have remained with us for some years to come had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance."

He Had a Cold!

Which, by some injudicious prescription, had been converted into asthma." Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not

NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP.

KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indications of a Cold, and you will think and speak of it as all do who have become acquainted with its merits.

During the battle of Wise's Forks the command were within hearing of the guns but could not reach the field. One family complained bitterly because some of their property was taken, saying: "We have two boys up there fighting for our independence, and here you are taking away our property." The inconsistency wasn't apparent to the Yankee boys.

As soon as it was evident that we were advancing in force upon Kinston, a deputation of the citizens came down to the bridge and held a conversation with General Schofield across the stream. [illegible] said the Mayor, "to surrender the town and claim protection of its inhabitants." "The protection," replied General Schofield, "will depend upon their behavior." Inquiry was made whether there were any soldiers there. "Yes," replied the Mayor, "the pickets are there, but they have orders not to fire." "I don't care whether they fire or not," said the General. As a part of our force was already flanking Kinston in line of battle, and as there was a battery on the river bank commanding the town, it was evidently a matter of more concern to the inhabitants than to our commanding General that there should be no more firing.

A VISIT TO FORT SUMTER—CONDITION OF THE WORK.—"Carleton" writes to the Boston Journal as follows:

After a ramble of several hours through the city of Charleston we made a visit to Sumter, entering by the sally port where Major Anderson and his faithful few entered on that ever to be remembered January night of 1861. The fort bears little resemblance to its appearance then externally. No portion of the original face of the wall is to be seen except on the side towards Charleston and a portion of that facing Moultrie. From the harbor and from Wagner it appears only a tumulus—the debris of an old ruin.

All the casemates, arches, pillars and parapets are torn up, rent asunder and utterly demolished. The great guns which two years ago kept the monitors at bay, which flamed and thundered awhile upon Wagner, are dismounted, broken, overturned and lie buried beneath the mounds of brick dust, concrete, sand and mortar. After Dupont's attack in April 1863, a reinforcement of Palmetto logs was made on the harbor side and against half of the wall facing Moultrie. The lower tier of casemates was filled up with sand bags, but when General Gilmore obtained possession of Wagner his fire began to crumble the parapet.

The rebels endeavored to reconstruct the wall or to maintain its original hight by gabions filled with sand, but this compelled a widening of the base inside. Thousands of bags filled with sand were brought to the fort at night. Bombproofs were constructed. Day after day, week after week the pounding from Wagner was maintained so effectually and thoroughly that it was impossible to keep a gun in position on that side.

The only guns now remaining are five or six on the Moultrie side in the middle tier of casemates. [illegible] kept in the walls to repel an attack by small boats, the garrison keeping under cover or seeking cover whenever the lookout cried "a shot."

Chevaux de frise of pointed sticks protect the fort from a scaling party. At the base outside are iron posts and wire net work. There is also a submerged net work of wire and chains kept in place by floating buoys.

I had the curiosity to make an inspection of the wall facing Moultrie to see what was the effect of the fire of the iron clads in Dupont's attack. With my glass at that time I could see that the wall was badly honey combed; a close inspection shows that it was a very damaging fire. There are seams in the masonry and great gashes where the solid bolts crumbled the bricks to dust. It is evident that if the fire could have been continued any length of time there that wall would have fallen. The effect of that fire led to the filling up of the lower casemates.

An hour was passed in the fort, the band playing national airs, and the party inspecting the ruins and gathering relics."

GENERAL SHERMAN'S RECEPTION IN [illegible].—A correspondent writing from City Point [illegible] the 28th of March describes an interview between Grant, Sherman and their officers:

The latest news from [illegible] was received at General Grant's headquarters last evening by Major General W. T. Sherman in person. He left Goldsboro on the afternoon of Saturday, the 25th, accompanied by Major [illegible] and arrived at City Point on the [illegible] from Fortress Monroe at half past five o'clock last evening. General Grant had been apprised by telegraph from the latter place of his being on the way, and he was warmly greeted on touching the wharf by a large number of General Grant's staff [illegible] West.

"How are you, General Sherman?"

"Why, General Rawlings, how are you?" was followed by hearty greetings and handshakings. [illegible] officers [illegible] gathered around glad to meet [illegible] whose name will [illegible] the brightest pages of history.

[illegible]

Hoping it may find it convenient to reply, I have the honor to remain very respectfully your most obedient servant,

THOMPSON CAMPBELL.

REPLY OF SECRETARY McCULLOCH.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, March 28, 186[illegible]

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 24th instant is received.

The decision of the Supreme Court of California that United States notes could not be received for taxes, and the subsequent Act of the Legislature of the State, which seemed like an attempt at nullification of the National authority making these notes lawful money, have undoubtedly done much mischief to the State and not a little to the country generally.

Whatever opinions may have been entertained in regard to the propriety or necessity of the issue of these notes and the making of them a legal tender, when Congress, in view of the situation of the country, and on the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury, upon whom was devolved the responsibility of providing the means for the prosecution of the war, determined this question, it was, in my judgment, the duty of California to conform her policy to this determination. The legal tender acts were war measures, and California could not place herself, as she has done apparently, in opposition to these war measures without indirectly assailing the National credit, and casting her influence in no small degree on the side of those who with bloody hands were attempting the dismemberment of the Union. That such was the intention or the spirit of the people of California no one supposes. Truer or more loyal men than the majority of the people of that State are not to be found in any other State in the Union. Unfortunately they permitted their preference for a metallic currency and the influence of the bankers to place the State in opposition to the financial policy of the country, and to prevent her in this particular from being in hearty sympathy with the other loyal States.

Although situated upon the Pacific, no State has a deeper interest in the preservation of the Union, and none should have been in advance of her in sustaining those measures which the loyal people of the country had adopted as a means of accomplishing this object.

In regard to the wisdom of her policy in adhering to an exclusive metallic currency, as far as California herself is concerned, it may seem to be [illegible] for me to express an opinion. When by refusing to [illegible] the authority of Congress in making United States notes lawful money she places herself in antagonism to the credit of the Government, every supporter of the Government, no matter where he may reside, has the right to criticise and to condemn her action. But her financial policy so far as it affects California alone is a matter in which the citizens of other States have no direct interest. I have, however, very decided opinions upon this subject, and as you seem to desire an expression of them, I have no hesitation in saying that in my judgment California would have been a much richer and more prosperous State if her circulation had been a mixed instead of an exclusively metallic one; that she has not only failed properly to co-operate with the other States in maintaining the [illegible] credit, but has [illegible] her own interest in [illegible] the use of paper money within her limits.

No country can prosper for any considerable time where money commands so high a rate of interest as it does in California, and nothing would tend more directly to reduce that rate of interest than the introduction of a sound paper circulating medium.

[illegible]

I am very truly yours,

H. McCULLOCH.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm, [illegible] CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
